Reconex LTL Carrier Performance Report

July 2023 Carrier Performance

There was once a time when a carrier performing at 85% meant some serious conversations about that carrier's long-term viability in your business. As we near fall 2023, we're watching to see if we can continue gaining ground to regain overall performance in the 90% range.

In July, carrier performance jumped 2.5% month-over-month to 84.69%, a 2.2% improvement from July 2022.

Preliminary numbers for August show a slight downturn in performance as the rest of the LTL carrier base took on the freight left behind in the wake of Yellow's historic closure the last week of July. When the dust settles and we enter Q4, we expect an overall long-term improvement by removing 4 of the worst-performing carriers in our metrics.

Congrats to FedEx Freight Priority as, for the 2nd month in a row, they sit atop the National LTL Carrier leaderboard at 90.32%, with R&L remaining at the top YTD.

Dayton led the way in the Regional carrier category at 94.57%, while Southeastern Freight Lines stands at 93.19% YTD.
