Reconex LTL Carrier Performance Report

September 2023 Carrier Performance

September continued the trend of LTL carriers adapting to the new, Yellow-less world. We are seeing performance bounce back as Q3 ends with the overall performance at 83.75%, nationals bouncing back nicely from a rough August to 81.31%, and regionals maintaining strong performance. The LTL world is settling in a bit, benefitting from a softer market and allowing for the capacity to absorb the influx of business.

The upcoming auction of Yellow's terminals and other assets is something to watch closely. Current LTL carriers and others will be bidding on either specific terminals or the entirety of the 169 terminals. By early December, we should have a better view of who will take over those terminals and plans on how existing LTL carriers will expand their footprint or potential new carriers will come into the fold.

FedEx Freight Priority again led national carriers in September at 91.71% on time. Sutton Transport led the way for the 2nd month in a row in the regional carrier category at 94.22%. Year to date, R&L continues to lead the national category, and Dayton is edging out SEFL by .02%! It's going to be fun watching how we end the year!
